Resuscitating multilateralism with Indian help

It could lead a coalition to bridge the global deficit of trust with China through a regime of rules

Back home

As India brings back stranded expatriates, it must guard against a new wave of infections

A fter nearly two months, stranded Indians across parts of the globe are finally coming home this week as aircraft and naval ships, in a government-endorsed plan, brought back some 70,000 citizens from 22 countries. The pandemic has hit the Internal Affairs Ministry, is expected to last for weeks, at the cost of the interests of other countries and the region. The Indian government, however, has maintained that they are protecting the interest of other countries and the region. The Indian government, however, has maintained that they are protecting the interest of other countries and the region. The Indian government, however, has maintained that they are protecting the interest of other countries and the region.